Policy Statement on Copyright and Republication

The Student American Osteopathic Academy of Orthopedics (SAOAO) copyrights each of the issues of its publications to protect the SAOAO and the author against unauthorized use of the contents. The SAOAO in most cases will grant, without charge or royalty, the use of portions of articles to other authors in other scholarly publications. The SAOAO may also grant, without charge or royalty, the right of republication to other professional organizations, particularly for use in connection with continuing professional education. The SAOAO will normally forward requests for permission for use as courtesy to the original author's information and possible comments.

The SAOAO asks that authors of works appearing in its publications transfer to the SAOAO all right, title and interest in such works, including copyright. Due to a change in copyright law, the SAOAO must acquire each author's signature to affect the transfer of copyright. Articles and other written works cannot be considered for publication until an Assignment of Copyright form is signed by all authors and returned to us.

The SAOAO assumes no responsibility for statements made in articles contributed to its various publications and relies on contributing authors for the truth and accuracy of the contents of their articles.
